MODELS

1. Used to create database tables on your database

2. We will create the Django models that define the fields and behaviors of the Blog application data that we will be storing. These models map the data from your Django application to the database. It's what Django uses to generate the database tables via their object relational mapping (ORM) API called "models."